What do you do when you have questions, problems, need guidance or advice?

More than likely your answer probably depends on the situation, right? I go to this person, I go to that person, I go over here, go over there. Or, we may turn to ourselves and our own reasoning and judgment to find the answers to some of these.

In whatever it is we do, or wherever it is we may go, to deal with different situations, the Bible says our bottom-line pursuit for guidance, advice, and counsel is to be from God—i.e. His will, His ways, and His standards laid out before us in His Word.

Henry Blackaby writes in his book “Experiencing God,” “‘What is God’s will for my life?’ is not the right question. I think the right question is, ‘What is God’s will?’ Once I know God’s will, then I can adjust my life to Him. In other words, what is it that God is purposing where I am? Once I know what God is doing, then I know what I need to do. The focus needs to be on God, not my life!”

Read Proverbs 3:5-7.

- According to Proverbs 3:5-7 what conditions must be met in order for your path to be made obvious?
- What does trust look like in a relationship? How do you know when you fully trust God?
- In a world being driven by fear, how does trust in God help dispel the fear? How much have you taken God’s will into consideration when making decisions in your life?
- Which is more difficult for you: Discovering God’s will, or following through once you know it?

If you want God’s best for your life, then trust God with all your heart and seek His will in all your ways. Lean not on your own understanding, so that this conditional promise of a clear path for your life can be a reality.
